Fixed Income Markets Outlook

Bond market have nervously sold off in August 2025 where the 10year benchmark yields have gone up by ~20 bps and long end g-sec as well as State Development Loan (SDL) yields have gone up even more.

The main reasons assigned to this sell off is-

- a) GST rate revision is expected to be fiscal negative and hence may increase supply of sovereign securities.
- b) RBI's neutral stance indicates that there are no more rate cuts in near future.
- c) Long g-sec plus long SDL supply as a percentage of total annual supply between April-2025 and Aug 2025 is heavier than as seen in the past few years.
- d) Demand from long term investors like Insurance and Pension funds is lower than expected due to lower inflow of AUM or due to availability of alternate investment options (like extra allocation allowed towards equity).
- e) Lower run rate of corporate tax in this financial year till date coupled with upfront capex executed by Government has resulted in slightly heavier cumulative run rate on fiscal deficit till date.
- f) INR has depreciated sharply in this month compared to some peers given larger than expected tariff impact.

Fixed Income Markets Outlook

We see value in the fixed income market in light of -

- Current sell off has resulted in valuation of securities to a reasonably potential point wherein spreads of 10-year benchmark vs the overnight rate and SDLs/Long gsec versus the 10yr benchmark have reached the higher end of the trading range.
- We do not believe at this stage that GST rate cuts would be fiscal negative as we believe Government would benefit from higher volumes at lower GST rates and may also have other avenues to manage the deficit, if any.
- INR depreciation has resulted in INR valuation being closer to fair level and provides a potential entry point from foreign investors in fixed income market.
- The demand/supply gaps to some extent have become structural. This needs to be attended by RBI/GOI by tweaking as necessary the borrowing composition or increasing demand through secondary market purchases. This is necessary to realize the original goal of achieving rate transmission in the entire economy to support credit growth.
- Positive real rates of ~200 bps (1yr Tbill vs FY26 inflation), post RBI rate cut of 100 bps provides a fundamentally attractive case for remaining invested in fixed income assets. Benign inflation forecast of 3.1%, below RBI threshold of 4% for FY 26. Maintaining GDP forecast at 6.5% indicates a continuity of pro-growth-oriented policy mindset.
