Fixed Income Outlook - Opportunity Going forward!

Baroda
BNP PARIBAS
MUTUAL FUND

- India's fixed income market is entering September at an inflection point: growth is proving stronger than expected, liquidity remains abundant, but the inflation and policy outlook is turning less benign.
- Q1 FY27 real GDP growth at 7.8%, well above the RBI's 7.0% projection, confirms that domestic growth momentum remains resilient. It reduces the urgency for further monetary accommodation and gives RBI greater flexibility to remain focused on the inflation trajectory.
- The inflation outlook has become less benign - July CPI inflation increased to 4.45%, while food inflation rose to 5.52%. Although the August MPC retained a neutral stance, the subsequent MPC minutes were notably more hawkish, highlighting the risk of second-round effects from food, fuel and input costs. Consequently, the market has started assigning a higher probability to a rate hike during FY27, rather than expecting further easing.
- Fed Chair Kevin Warsh emphasised that US inflation remains above the Fed's 2% objective, with PCE inflation at 3.7%, and noted that recent improvements in inflation have not yet demonstrated a sufficiently convincing downward trend. This reinforces the risk of global yields remaining elevated and limits the scope for a sustained decline in domestic long-term yields.
- The liquidity environment remains unusually supportive following strong mobilisation under the RBI's special FCNR(B) deposit and swap facility. USD 136.377 billion of foreign currency inflows had been mobilised by August 31, 2026 including USD 127.226 billion through FCNR(B) deposits. The resulting conversion of foreign currency into rupees has materially increased banking-system liquidity, which should continue to provide support to money-market instruments and the front end of the curve.
- The USD/INR exchange rate peaked near 96.57 in late July before steadily declining toward 95.16 by the end of August 2026. This downward correction and subsequent stabilization of the rupee were directly driven by robust FCNR(B) dollar inflows.
- Following a sharp decline to a low near $71/bl in late June, Brent crude prices rebounded significantly to peak near $101/bl in late July before consolidating between $80 and $95/bl through August 2026.
- The G-sec curve witnessed an upward shift in intermediate segment during August. The 3-month T-bill yield declined by 8 bps to 5.27%, while 6-month and 9-month T-bill yields increased by 15 bps and 13 bps respectively.
- Further out, the 2-year and 3-year G-sec yields increased by 15 bps from 6.13 to 6.28 and 17 bps from 6.22 to 6.39, respectively, while the 5-year yield rose by 13 bps from 6.45 to 6.58. The 10-year yield moved higher by around 11 bps to 6.95%.
- The curve movement indicates that liquidity is providing stronger support to the very front end, while the intermediate segment is increasingly reflecting the changed policy outlook following the stronger GDP print and hawkish MPC minutes.
- Key monitorables : food and core inflation, crude oil prices, INR stability, global bond yields, RBI liquidity management and the persistence of domestic growth momentum.
